INTERESTING CARD PARTY
AT SCHMIDT'S HOTEL

Mrs. Henry Schmidt and Mrs.
Marie Schmidt, of Schmidt's hotel, delightfully entertained Friday evening at cards a party of twenty-eight ladies.

Five hundred was enjoyed by the ladies, seven tables being devoted to the contest.

After the scores were taken up it was found that Mrs. E. P. Intemann was the winner of the first prize, Mrs.
Henry Pollitz, the second, and Mrs.
Sutherland was awarded the third.

The ladies then repaired to the dining room which was beautifully decorated with cut flowers and ferns, where a dainty and delicious repast was served by the hostesses.

A Trying Ordeal.

"Colonel," asked the beautiful girl,
"when was the most trying moment of your life?" "It was when I went to my wife's father for the purpose of asking him to let me have her. He was very deaf, and I had to explain the matter before twenty clerks!"—

THE WISHING RING AT THE ARCADE MONDAY

Vivian Martin in "The Wishing Ring"—a Shubert feature will be given at the Arcade Monday.

Sally's father was the parson of a poor church. Sally, though in rags, had artistic instincts, and in order to get flowers for the church vases she invaded the garden of old Annesley and gathered them without the formality of asking for permission. Annesley was annoyed at the mysterious disappearance of his pet flowers, and in a quarrel with his gardener, received the old servant's apron in his face.

"A Favorite Fool." A tornado wrecks a circus tent, which falls on Eddie Foy, the seven little Foy's and Polly Moran. They poke their heads through the rain-soaked canvas and the curtain falls on one of Mack Sennett's most laughable farces, "A Favorite Fool." Foy is a "son of rest" on a farm when "The Widow Wallop's Circus" strikes town. He knows naught of the seven little Wallops when he proposes marriage to the widow and is accepted. Romance is assailed by the knowledge of the family he has acquired and he runs away. Later he learns that a brow-beating ringmaster who has ousted the widow from the show is a villain and that the show really belongs to her. Then he returns with the papers proving ownership, casts the ringmaster into a lion's cage and takes possession. The tornado releases the villain and he cuts the ropes that hold up the tent. "A Favorite Fool" has many thrills in its two reels of comedy. In one of the situations, Foy, beset by his new wife and her brood, leaps from a roof. He also runs an electric car into an auto stalled on a crossing. The veteran comedian seems sure to be a great success in motion pictures.

"The Coward."

The brave Colonel Winslow, veteran of the Mexican war, lives in hope of a great future for his only son, Frank. At the outbreak of the Civil war, a recruiting station is opened in the Virginia village where the Winslows live, but Frank, obsessed with fear, enlists only after his father has threatened to kill him if he refuses. The very first night on picket duty the boy deserts and returns home. His father, in shame and humiliation, takes his place in the ranks. Frank hides in the garret when a Union force raids the village and overhears several Northern officers discuss a weak point in their line. Fear departing, he holds them up and gets the plans. Then follows a thrilling ride to the Confederate camp. As he dashes across a bridge, his father, on picket, shoots and horse and rider tumble into the swift current. The boy reaches shore, however, and with a knowledge of the enemy's weakness, the Southern troops win a great victory. Colonel, now private, Winslow, is summoned to headquarters, and when he learns that his son made the victory possible the stirring drama ends with their reconciliation.

"ISLAND OF REGENERATION" CRESCENT BILL MONDAY

Reverend Cyrus Townsend Brady never wrote a more absorbing book than his "Island of Regeneration." And there was never a story written by anyone that offered greater possibilities to film-drama.

A beautiful girl—running away from the unwelcome attentions of the owner of the yacht on which she was a guest—cast upon a tropical island in the Southern Pacific; the sole inhabitant, a man who had lived alone there since early childhood; his only remembrance of language the "Now I lay me," taught him twenty years before by his mother. Imagine what a story could be built upon an idea like this. And by such a master-hand as Cyrus Townsend Brady.

And you think of this story Vitagraphed! You know Vitagraph productions. You know the genius of J. Stuart Blackton and Albert E. Smith. You know the scale on which they do things. You know the Vitagraph resources and facilities that are at their command.

Imagine how they would handle the fire at sea, the earthquake, the attempted rescue, the charming love scenes on the tropical island, the girl bathing in the sequestered pond, the arrival of the United States cruiser, the return to civilization.

The "Island of Regeneration" is a great film-drama. It is the second of the Vitagraph Blue Ribbon Features and these as you know are the headliners of all Vitagraph productions. Come and see this unique romance.

BATTLE CRY OF PEACE A GREAT LESSON TO THE AMERICAN PUBLIC

For the first time in the history of the Daytona stage a moving picture has been employed to set forth a public lesson as well as to provide entertainment. "The Battle Cry of Peace," which was given its initial performance here at the New Daytona theater, is a powerful call to the American nation not to go to war but to be so prepared that international conflict will be averted. The various episodes and the connected narrative have been prepared by Commodore J. Stuart Blackton, from the book of Hudson Maxim, "Defenceless America."

All the incidents, not to say terrible events, are perfectly possible even if somewhat improbable, for Mr. Blackton has laid on his colors with a lavish hand and made them tremendously impressive. It begins with a photograph of a lecture by Hiram Maxim on the lack of military and naval protection in this country and in this scene the story also begins. A typical young American, John Harrison, is one of the listeners and is so impressed by the truth of the speaker's statements that he tells his friends and family what he has heard. They scoff at his ideas, especially the father of his sweetheart, a railway magnate.

There are foreign spies at work who advocate peace at any price, and meetings are held in which the white dove is conspicuous. All the time the enemies of the nation are plotting and finally, with scarcely a moment's warning, a foreign fleet appears off New York, and without further preliminaries begins to bombard the city. The troops are landed. The railroad magnate is shot as a sniper and the young man is also wounded. The invading hosts destroy private property, outrage women and pillage and slaughter relentlessly.

The young American is endeavoring to save his sweetheart from the assaults of a brutal officer, is bayoneted. The mother having shot her younger sister and herself, the girl goes raving mad. There are harrowing sights in some of the scenes for the acting is very realistic. But in the way of photography, it surpasses anything ever witnessed.

The terrible effect of bombs thrown from aeroplanes, exploding in the streets, scattering death and destruction, is vividly portrayed. In the supposed naval encounter off Sandy Hook, the immense battleships are seen to list and sink and smaller craft are blown to atoms by a torpedo.

Another scene shows a head-on collision between two railroad trains and the effect of exploding shells on buildings and the firing of the huge disappearing guns in the coast defenses are wonderfully interesting. It is a masterpiece in photography from be-

ARMSTRONG'S FORBEAR SAVES HIM FROM JAIL

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14.—President Wilson's action on the application for executive clemency of William H. Armstrong, Jr., of Philadelphia, writes the final chapter in a tale of exceptional human interest.

Armstrong, a society youth of Philadelphia, belonging to one of the oldest Pennsylvania families, was made the dupe of promoters of the International Lumber and Development Company, according to the representations made by his counsel to the Department of Justice. They declared he had no direct part in the fraud alleged to have been perpetrated by the promoters.

He was arrested, however, along with the promoters of the company, who are alleged to have sold millions of dollars' worth of stock based on the development of vast timber tracts in Mexico, which, the prosecution claimed, was mostly worthless desert land.

The wealthy relatives of young Armstrong were horrified at the prospect of the stigma of prison bars being attached to the family name and retained high price counsels to effect the young man's release. The story of the efforts made by these lawyers, especially John Schwartzkopf, of Philadelphia, in trying to obtain pardon for Armstrong is stranger than fiction. Armstrong has been ill in a Philadelphia hospital throughout the campaign carried on to obtain his pardon.

At first the plea made by his counsel that he was merely roped in by the promoters of the lumber company in order that he might introduce them to the best people in Philadelphia, appeared to be unsuccessful at Washington.

One of Armstrong's forebears was at one time prominent in the public affairs of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania. At a famous convention held years ago, this ancestor delivered an address in favor of modifying the stringent laws of Pennsylvania punishing minor offenses. His words on the theory of public freedom have become classic, and frequently are quoted by members of the bar.

It so happened that Attorney Schwartzkopf, in preparing a supplementary brief to be laid before President Wilson in connection with Armstrong's application for pardon, quoted some of old Armstrong's finest lines, although at the time he did not know their authorship. As everybody knows, President Wilson is keenly appreciative of eloquent language. Glancing over Schwartzkopf's brief, his eye was caught by a quoted phrase from the elder Armstrong. Charmed by the diction, his interest was challenged and he read the entire brief.

This was a turning point in the case. The President directed Pardon Attorney Finch of the Department of Justice to make a special investigation to determine whether the statements of Schwartzkopf that young Armstrong was the really innocent victim of alleged unscrupulous "Qualifgords" were true. The investigation was made and the statements verified.

HIS OBJECT LESSON

By CATHERINE CRAMMER.

"Larry, have my horse ready at five today." As Harold Brentley spoke his attention was attracted by old Larry's unusual lameness as he started off toward the stables. "Hold on, Larry," called Harold. "What has got into your legs? Are you doing anything for rheumatism?"

"Sure Mr. Brentley. I can't see how medicine I swallow is going to help my legs, but old Doc Whitley says to keep on taking it."

"I'm afraid that cooking you do over there is none too good for you, Larry. Why didn't you marry, and now you'd have a wife to take care of your aches and pains?"

"Well, Mr. Brentley," began Larry slowly and standing with his left hand on his hip and his right hand holding his knee, "it was just because I was too hard-headed to give in on anything, and while I was waiting for the girl to give in on everything she married a fellow that was so glad to get her he didn't care who gave in nor how much."

"That is rather a vague explanation and a surprising one to me, Larry. I never found you hard-headed," Harold was curiously interested.

"But you never found me till after I'd learned a thing or two," responded Larry. "It's a long story, but if you want to hear it all I'll tell you."

"Go ahead, Larry," Harold smiled encouragingly.

"You see," began Larry, "Mary Glenn and me was the same as engaged, and I was so jealous I didn't want her to dance with the other fellows. She was a girl with as many ways of smiling as a mocking bird has of singing, and, of course, the fellows flocked around her. One evening I got mad 'cause she danced three times with the same fellow, and I guess I took a tip more than was good for my temper, and on the way home I had down the law to Mary. She didn't get riled, but she said, just as calm as you please: 'Whenever you get ready to quit bullying me and to let drink alone as much as you want me to let the other boys alone, then I'll be ready to give in about anything in reason. There's got to be giving in on both sides, or we don't keep company any more, and that's all I've got to say.' It was all she did say, too, and my storming around about a girl trying to interfere with a man's personal liberty didn't draw one word from her. When she reached her father's gate she bounced into the house quick as lightning and at Christmas the same year she married another fellow."

"And you, Larry—what did you do then?" Harold asked this perforator to bring Larry's mind from the faraway past.

"Me? I sailed for America, and I've been here ever since. So," concluded Larry, "you see, here I am, with no wife to help me carry the load that comes with the years."

"Yes, Larry, I think I do see," said Harold slowly. Then he got up abruptly and went into the house. He closed his study door and went straight to the telephone. During the brief interval until he received a reply no visible muscle moved, but his face grew very pale and his heart pounded away like a stationary engine.

"Colonel Hunter's residence?" Then, almost instantly, "May I speak to Miss Buncle?" His attitude remained rigid as he awaited her voice in the receiver.

"Buncle, this is Harold. May I talk to you a little while?" The hand that held the receiver was trembling.

"There's a lot I'd like to say that could hardly be said over the telephone, but if I told you that I've begun to see, some things differently would you let me come to see you and explain?" And Harold, whose arguments in court were noted for their directness, found himself fumbling for words in which to present his side of the case to the calm-voiced young woman at the other end of the wire.

"Well no, perhaps that is not exactly explicit. The only way I can be explicit is to say frankly that I'm ashamed of the attitude I took when we disagreed over whether I should dictate to you about your professional associates any more than you about mine." Harold almost embraced the telephone instrument as he added in his most persuasive tones. "And, Buncle, you've made such a success as a social worker among unfortunate women, won't you undertake to set right and make happy one more man whose mind is open to conviction and whose heart is starving for you?"

A very brief pause marked the birth of a blissful expression on Harold's face.

"You say Central is not deaf? I'm not either, Buncle, and it makes me happy to hear that gentle tone in your voice. If I come by in fifteen minutes will you go for a long ride and supper at the Country club?" The interval that followed was infinitesimal. "I'm on my way now, dearest."

The receiver was still swinging on its hook when Harold went from the room and called to Larry.

"Never mind about the horse, Larry. I'm going out in my car."

"And you're not going alone either, or I miss my guess," chided Larry to himself, as he limped away toward the stables.

Dumont Says Flying Machines
Are Real Doves of Peace.

$10,000 PRIZE IS OFFERED

Aviator Would Have Express Service Between Two Continents—United States Flier Breaks Record by Attaining Height of 7,000 Feet Under Adverse Conditions.

Alberto Santos-Dumont, the Brazilian aviator, exhibited the proceedings of the Pan-American Scientific congress the other day by predicting that the aeronauts would be the instruments by which the goal of internationalism would be achieved in the western hemisphere.

The aeronauts would serve as a means of defense for coast patrol, would promote communication, aid in commercial interchange and overcome existing problems of time and space, in his opinion.

"I believe that the aeroplane," he said, "will knit the various states of the hemisphere into an integrally unit ed, co-operating and friendly combination, allied for the共同 well-being in trade and commerce as well as for strength in times of possible war."

In support of the prophecy the Aero Club of America offered a $10,000 pan-American aviation trophy to be competed for annually by representatives of the nations of the western hemisphere.

"All European countries," said Mr. Santos-Dumont, "are old enemies. Here in the new world we should all be friends. We should be able in case of trouble to intimidate any European power contemplating war against any one of us, not by guns—of which we have so few—but by the strength of our union."

With time and distance annihilated the commercial relations so long deferred will spontaneously develop. We shall have facilities for prompt communication. We shall get into closer contact. We shall become stronger in the bonds of understanding and friend ship.

In connection with the offer of the aviation trophy a letter from Alan R. Root, president of the Aero Club of America, to the Brazilian ambassador was made public in which he says:

"We agree with Mr. Santos-Dumont that these aeroplanes of today, which already make it possible to carry a dozen passengers and a ton of useful load at a speed of 150 miles an hour, can save most difficult journeys of transportation and that if applied for this purpose as well as for sport in and between the nations of the western hemisphere they will become one of the most effective factors in bringing these nations into closer and more friendly alliance."

"Despatches from Europe make us realize daily that whereas air craft are the deciding factor and the most effective weapon against submarines, in the nations of the western hemisphere aeroplanes in use for sporting and other purposes thus far have not been well protected against submarine challenges."

Altitude Record Broken.

Interestng details collected with the record flight of Lieutenant Snuffy, U. S. N., in breaking the altitude record for passenger carrying aeronauts have also been made public.

Interestingly bad atmospheric conditions were encountered during the flight, and the wind at times blew at the velocity of seventy miles an hour. At an altitude of 13,500 feet the gusts were so severe that the machine was stalled several times and attacked by downward gusts "sufficient to make the altitude feet lost in the air."

When Lieutenant Snuffy, the report says, had about decided to make a landing the aeroplane suddenly emerged from the disturbed atmosphere into very smooth air. At an altitude of 20,000 feet Lieutenant Snuffy maintained a position directly over the beach at North Carolina, which was flying at the door of the seashore station, without changing his course for ten minutes while climbing at a rate of 200 feet a minute.

"While still climbing he began to go astern. It is estimated that he was in a steady wind of over seventy miles per hour. The velocity registered in the aeronaut was 120 f. per sec. at the flying school, based on degrees. When the aeroplane returned to the beach after making the altitude there was ice on the water about a quarter of an inch thick."

AERO AMBULANCES NOW.

France Has Six Aeroplanes to Care
For Wounded Men.

Aeroplanes were used for ambulance work for the first time during the retreat from Serbia by the French military mission, says Henri Barbet, war correspondent of the Paris Journal.

The Balkan mission was at Pristend. There were many helpless persons. It was impossible to carry them on stretchers, but it was determined not to abandon them. The French had six aeroplanes. They had been exposed to rain and snow for two months, but were in working order.

Colonel Fournier placed on these aeroplanes the persons whose condition was most grave and sent them by air to Serbia.

SHIPYARDS BUSY WITH NEW ORDERS

America Sees Tenfold Increase In Eighteen Months.

OLD PLANTS ARE REOPENED

Tonnage of 761,511, Now Being Constructed, Greater Than That of Any Previous Year—All of the Factories Have Work Ahead That Will Keep Them Busy For Months.

Shipbuilding plants in the United States are working to their full capacity, but can increase their output from 15 to 60 per cent within a year, according to replies received by the New York chamber of commerce from thirty or more yards.

Already the tonnage under order or construction is double the aggregate tonnage for any year within the last ten.

The inquiry was made of the shipbuilding companies in view of the efforts now being made to enlarge the mercantile marine under American registry. According to one of the most prominent shipbuilders, the amount of ocean going merchant tonnage now building in the United States for American registry has increased tenfold since July 1, 1914.

Increase Since July.
"Since July 1 of the past year there has been a marked increase in the construction activities in most of the large plants in all the leading shipbuilding districts of the United States," says the statement issued by the chamber of commerce. "At one of the leading New England plants they have a construction capacity of the value of $10,000,000 a year and work on hand for fifteen months from Dec. 1.

"Of this amount 50 per cent is government work, the other 50 per cent being merchant tonnage. This firm could make a very considerable expansion if demands justified it. Another typical New England plant with a capacity of $1,500,000 of output a year has twelve months' work on its books. Another New England industry is engaged wholly in engine building for submarines.

"In the Delaware and Chesapeake sections orders are large. Fully a hundred craft of various kinds, including a larger proportion of ocean going vessels than usual, are being constructed in this group of yards. On the Delaware eighty-two vessels were being built with an aggregate of 283,000 tons, valued at $58,000,000 and employing not less than 20,000 men.

"A single plant there, whose merchant shipping capacity in recent years ranged from 40,000 to 50,000 tons, reports its capacity now as 112,000 dead weight tons per year.

"This plant is capable of turning out sixteen vessels of 7,000 tons each per year and on Nov. 24 had orders on hand for two years.

"Another company, with a capacity of 45,000 tons, is booked up for eighteen months, working entirely on merchant ships. A company in this district which on July 1 had but one ship on its ways now has sixteen under construction or ordered.

"The capacity of the country to produce merchant shipping has been increased by the reopening of some of the older plants.

"According to information supplied by the secretary of commerce, the tonnage contracted for up to Dec. 1 aggregates 761,511 gross tons. Of this tonnage thirteen ships are of 10,000 tons or more, twenty are from 7,000 to 10,000 tons, thirty-six from 5,000 to 7,000 tons, ten from 4,000 to 5,000 tons and nineteen from 3,000 to 4,000. Of the ninety-eight vessels fifty two were contracted for since July 1. The total tonnage, 761,511, is greater than was ever built in the shipyards of the United States in any single calendar year."

69 LYNCHINGS LAST YEAR.

Record of Deaths at Hands of Mobs Exceeds That of 1914 by Seventeen.

Monroe N. Work, head of the department of records and research of Tuskegee Institute, in his annual report shows that during the year 1915 there have occurred sixty-nine lynchings.

Of those lynched fifty-five were negroes and fourteen whites. This is six more negroes and eleven more whites than were put to death by mobs in 1914, when the record was forty-nine negroes and three whites. Included in the record are three women. In at least four instances it later developed that the persons put to death were innocent of the offenses charged.

Eighteen, or more than one-fourth of the total lynchings, occurred in the state of Georgia.

Only eleven—ten negroes and one white—or 15 per cent of the total, were charged with rape.

Lynchings occurred in the following states: Alabama, 9; Arkansas, 5; Florida, 5; Georgia, 18; Illinois, 1; Kentucky, 5; Louisiana, 2; Mississippi, 9; Missouri, 2; Ohio, 1; Oklahoma, 3; South Carolina, 1; Tennessee, 2; Texas, 5; Virginia, 1.

Fire Losses In 1915.

Fire losses of 1915 in the United States and Canada, according to figures compiled by the New York Journal of Commerce, aggregated $182,836,200, compared with $235,591,300 in 1914, a decrease of $52,755,100. The total loss in 1915 was the smallest since 1905, when the figures were $175,193,800.

St. Valentine's Day February Fourteenth

Christmas time about her head. It was just the hour when all Kingsport went for the mail. True, hers had been brought to her, but going to the office was a time honored custom, and besides, this was a holiday.

The cold flushed her cheeks, and joy put a sparkle in her eyes. Some one in a long overcoat was coming toward her. Now, a strange, wild impulse made her want to turn, to run, to escape, from what she did not know. But it was too late. Before her was the young farm hand, now the successful California orange grower, whom her father had spurned.

"Why, it's Betty!" an old, familiar voice was saying. Nobody had called her just plain Betty in twenty-five years.

"I heard your talk last night," she said as she extended her hand. "I enjoyed it very much."

"And you didn't come up to speak to me?" he chided in reproachful tones.

"I did not think you would remember me," she said as her face flushed.

"Why, Betty, you had a red shawl like that the night we went on the hay ride," he said. "It's immensely becoming, and your cheeks are just as—"

But she interrupted him. "I want to thank you for all that!"

"Now, never mind about my speech," he self consciously broke in. "You just ought to come to California yourself and see what kind of a country we've got out there."

In Miss Betty's heart was echoing that ardent "Oh, come with me away, away," and, having not a doubt as to the sender of the valentine, she said: "Do you really want me to go with you, Amos?"

Now it suddenly struck Amos that he did, and he wondered why he had not thought of it before. So the vehement affirmative of the reply was in proportion to the suddenness of the impulse.

And to this day the little lady, still prim, shy and diffident, but smiling as the roses in her California garden, does not know that it was she who proposed, for Amos Bailey is too gallant a gentleman to tell her that he did not send that precious Cupid compound.

An Old Valentine.
When summer first unclothes my brain
And thoughts is free
And sense, refreshed, renews her reign,
I think of thee.

When next in prayer to God above

I bend my knee
Then, when I pray for those I love,
I pray for thee.

And when the duties of the day

Demand of me

To rise and journey on life's way

I work for thee.

Or if, perchance, I sing some lay,

Whatever it be

All that the idle verses say

They say of thee.

For an eye whose liquid light
Gleams like the sea
They sing, or tresses brown and bright,
They sing of thee.

And if a wearie mood, or sad,

Possesses me

One thought can all times make me glad

The thought of thee.

And when once more upon my bed,
Full wearied,
In sweet repose I lay my head,
I dream of thee.

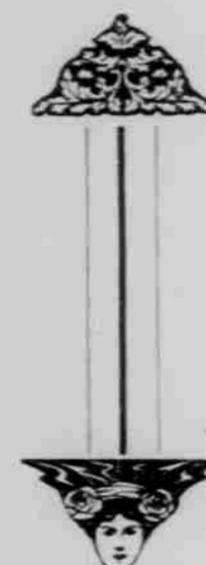

In short, one only wish I have—
To live for thee,
Or gladly, if one pang 'twould save,
I'd die for thee.

The Silent Company

If once the dead could speak! ••• If they who went gurgling beneath the brine and moved no more; if they who through the vapors born of hell Battled for breath and sank in tumbled heaps; if they who knew the sudden stab like fire And screamed aloud and into silence passed; if they who through the ache of thunderous roar Moaned thinly for the end, yet in the dust And smoke of engines vomiting black death Still lay neglected by their very God; if they who in the glad lime suddenly saw Their goodly bodies striken and the gush Of widening red that brought the message home; if they who in the ghostly aisles of white Went out like lamps beneath the balm of sleep; if they who writhed on trench floors black with blood; or whimpered in the tents of coited woe, Or raved thirst harried in the falling rain; if they who gave abruptly all the surge Of warmth and singing hope that made them men And now sleep still as sand beneath the snow; of rivers, not of water, but of blood—If they could speak I wonder then if war, Confronted by the legions of the dead, Could dare to answer when God questioned, "Why?"

—Arthur Stringer in McClure's Magazine.

SILKS GETTING SCARCE; FAMINE IS SEEN HERE.

Shortage of Dye and Cost of Labor
Given as Causes.

The silkworm has turned. And the whole world of styles and textiles is on its knees before the royal cocoon. The silk loom worker, once so bumble, is demanding the wages of a baseball star or a prima donna. Dye stuffs of all colors are getting as rare as the rainbow. A worldwide silk famine is threatened. At the present time silk which once retailed at 75 cents a yard now sells for $1. and goods once ticketed at $1.25 now command from $1.50 to $1.75 a yard. Wholesalers see a rise of 30 per cent in silk prices next fall.

Prosperity is at a high mark, and millions of women are financially entitled to revel in silk, and nothing but silk, for gowns, underwear, stockings and nightgowns, it was asserted. With the heaviest demand for silk in years, stocks are dwindling to such an extent that even the greatest wholesalers predict a "hand to mouth" era in supplying the market. The dyestuff shortage comes on top of a dearth in textiles in all corners of the globe.

And then there is a paucity of loom workers, who, it seems, can earn better wages lifting shrapnel shells on flat cars than performing the delicate and skillful operations required on the loom. "It is most essential that the dye shortage be relieved before we can hope for anything approaching normal in the silk industry," said a dealer who has worked "in silks" for more than forty-eight years. "The public does not realize how serious the dye problem is. Germany has not only quit sending dyes, but has practically quit making them. Its chemists have found that the same elements may be useful in munitions. Imitation rubber for motor trucks is one of the products practically produced from dye materials.

"And in this country dye materials are soaring so high that recently in New York a barrel of red coloring matter which a firm had bought before the war for $100 was taken for $7,000. One manufacturer recently informed a customer that no more orders would be taken for navy blue and Russian green in silks. Other hues are diminishing rapidly."

WILSON'S IDEA OF A HERO.

Men Who Risk Lives to Better Conditions Are the Brave Men.

Here is President Wilson's idea of a hero, expressed in a letter from him to Secretary Lane:

"The rescuer of the bureau of mines who braves the poisonous gases and saves a miner from death, the coast guard who at the peril of his own life saves passengers of a helpless vessel from death, the surgeon of the public health service who stops a dreaded scourge in its incipiency, the engineer who succeeds in reducing the hazards of industry to its men and the man who brings about better conditions of living among people I consider all types of the hero who will be best regarded in the near future."

PRISONERS OFFER CANES.

Want to Sell Product to University Students.

Hearing that the law students at the University of Washington were planning to "wear" canes this year, No. 7795, an inmate of the penitentiary at Walla Walla, has sent two samples of his craftsmanship in the hope of opening a market for the spare time product of the prisoners.

The canes are of leather with a steel foundation, and the handles are of German silver with inlaid bits of abalone shell.

The manufacturer has set no price upon his art, preferring to leave that to the "good judgment" of his customers.

Seventeen Varieties of Congratulations. Salutations in seventeen languages were given to Judge Sulzberger of Philadelphia at a special reception tendered to him. The occasion signalized Judge Sulzberger's retirement from the bench.

Mrs. W. H. Niles, Miss Florence N. Moulton, Miss Alice Hopkins, and Mrs. Emma E. Ingalls, of Lynn, Mass., will spend a few days at the Ormond.

Miss Edith Scammon and Miss Elizabeth Scammon, of Boston, former valued patrons of Bretton Woods, have arrived at the Ormond for a stay of a few days.

Benj. Megee, Jacob Megee and Jas. R. Nugent, of Newark, N. J., are registered at the Ormond. W. P. Sayre and K. D. Alexander, of Kentucky, are staying at the Ormond.

Great preparations are being made for the "Auction" at Mrs. Henry Iron's Japanese bungalow, which is to be held next Thursday for the benefit of the French refugees. Tickets are on sale now; the price being $1.25 for auction and refreshments and 50 cents for tea alone. This is for a worthy cause, and should net quite a sum for the sufferers from this terrible war.

Mrs. E. A. Brinckerhoff and her daughter, Mrs. W. B. Chapin, of Englewood, N. J., former valued patrons of the Ormond, have returned for the remainder of the season.

It has been suggested that the city have a croquet ground at the side of the city hall for the gratuitous use of all those enjoying the game. Chief Walter E. French, of the Daytona Fire department is undertaking the task of handling the subscription list.

Already prominent people have donated generously and all those who take interest in the city are cordially invited to send their "mite" to Chief French. The News will shortly publish a list of the funds.

Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Ward and Miss Martha Ferguson, of Paris, Ky., left Saturday for Ormond, after spending a week on the beach at the Seaside Inn. Mr. and Mrs. Ward and Miss Ferguson will be pleasantly located at the Ormond hotel before leaving for their winter home in Kentucky.

The Acme of Consideration. "I shall never find another man like George was," means the lady in heavy black. The friend beside her pats her arm soothingly. "He never gave me a harsh word," continues the disconsolate one. HIS GOOD ADVICE

ANONYMOUS.

There wasn't the least bit of harm about Brodwaiser. He was as amiable and well-meaning a little man as ever wore felt insoles and a chamois leather chest protector. But people in general hardly appreciated his good qualities. The first time that Smith saw him he was standing at the edge of a roadside excavation for gas pipes watching the deliberate movements of a laborer who was ostensibly engaged in throwing out gravel. As Smith approached he heard Brodwaiser say: "My man, if you would grasp your shovel with your left hand a little nearer the blade of your implement you would find it a better fulcrum for the leverage of your right and be enabled to raise more earth with substantially the same exertion."

The man stopped and looked up. "What's that?" he asked.

Brodwaiser repeated his advice and the man surveyed him for a moment or two with withering contempt.

"And to blazes wid ye an' yer fulcrum!" he said at last. "Gwan away home wid ye an' yer leverages, ye little dough-faced, lantern-jawed idjut. Talk to me about implements an' I'll shut ye in me dinner pail an' kape ye there till ye larn manners, so I will. Gwan!"

Brodwaiser reddened and moved away in silent dignity. Smith felt sorry for him and expressed his sympathy. "Oh," Brodwaiser said, "I hardly expected anything but abuse. One gets little thanks for good advice, I notice."

It was a windy day and before they had got very far a sudden gust removed Smith's straw hat. He recovered it with some difficulty and was rather out of breath when he rejoined Brodwaiser. The latter had waited, and as Smith came up he said: "If I were you I would buy one of these hat guards. They can be obtained for a mere trifle at any hat store, and the expenditure is repaid a thousand times by their saving of temper, to say nothing of the possibility of the hat being blown beneath the wheels of a dray."

"I've seen them," Smith said. "You don't wear one yourself, I notice."

"It's unnecessary," he replied, "my hat never—"

The wind took it as he spoke and sent it careering down the street, finally landing it in a puddle from whence he rescued it dripping with mud and water. Smith could not help saying that in a high wind it was a good idea to hold a loosely fitting hat by the brim with a tenacious clutch, but Brodwaiser seemed unconscious of the delicate sarcasm of the remark, so much so that when they arrived at Smith's front gate he called Smith's attention to the fact that it creaked on its hinges and recommended the application of sweet oil as a remedy for the unpleasant sound.

He was a near neighbor of Smith's and soon after that first meeting he called on Smith informally, as Smith was weeding his flower beds. On that occasion Smith became indebted to his visitor for two pieces of valuable information—that tobacco burned beneath a rosebush covered with a cloth or something of that sort to keep in the smoke had a discouraging effect upon the plant parasites known as green fly, and that porch of sufficient width on the west front of his cottage would afford a grateful shade against the rays of the sun in the afternoons.

He was a veritable encyclopedia of knowledge—never at a loss for a little suggestion on any subject. Until Smith learned that Brodwaiser was a bookkeeper for a firm of glass importers he imagined he must conduct the "Helpful Hints" department of some newspaper.

Smith overheard him in the meat market one morning instructing the butcher in the art of meat cutting.

"That ain't nothin', though," said the good-natured butcher, with a fat smile, when Brodwaiser had left. "He's give me pointers on preservin' eggs in their original new laidness by dippin' 'em in lime an' water. I'll bet he taught his grandmother to suck 'em. I trimmed a sirloin for him the other day an' when I threw the suet in the box under the counter he says: 'I sh'd think you'd use the fragments of meat in some sort of way 'stid of wastin' 'em. If you'd put the best of 'em in your sausage machine with proper seasonin' there ain't no reason why it wouldn't be good as long as the meat's fresh.' Ho! ho!"

But Brodwaiser is no more. He was a good citizen, a good neighbor and a kind of fussy husband and father. He died last spring of pneumonia. A little before he passed away the doctor happened to cough to hide his emotion at the sight of Mrs. Brodwaiser's grief.

"Doctor," said Brodwaiser, faintly, "you want to take care of that cough. Don't neglect it. It may develop into something serious. Now, when you get home have your wife heat some water and put it in a foot-tub with a little mustard. Then—"

He sank back on his pillow. That was the last piece of advice he ever gave.—Chicago Daily News.

Daytona, Florida,

E. W. Grove, of St. Louis, Mo., who has recently arrived, will enjoy an indefinite stay on the beach at the Hotel Clarendon.

Mrs. F. H. Sargent and Miss Alice Sargent, of Fort Sheridan, L. I., are in Seabreeze for a short stay and are staying at the Hotel Clarendon.

After spending some time on the beach at the Hotel Clarendon, J. F. Lawson left Saturday for Palm Beach and other points of interest in Florida.

A luncheon party including Mrs. J. M. Wood, of Toledo, Ohio, and Mrs. E. M. Pomeroy, of Northampton, Mass., was registered at the Hotel Clarendon Friday.

Among the noted dinner parties given in the grill of the Hotel Clarendon Saturday evening were Mrs. Perkins, party of three, and Mrs. Baker, who delightfully entertained a party of five.

The Hotel Clarendon presented a festive appearance last evening when a large number of dinner parties including guests and local people filled the grill. Later in the evening the guests adjourned to the lobby and ball room where music and the regular Saturday evening hop was enjoyed. Music as usual, was rendered by the Clarendon orchestra, under the direction of Harry Tucker. All the latest dance music was beautifully executed for the jolly dancers and this merriment was indulged in until a late hour.

Mr. and Mrs. Ade Sola Mendes, of Brunswick, Ga., and Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Aronstein, of New York, arrived Friday to spend some time in Seabreeze, and are guests of the Hotel Clarendon.

Mr. Cook was host at a dinner Friday evening in the grill of the Hotel Clarendon. Covers were laid for five and an elaborate course dinner was served. The guests of Mr. Cook thoroughly enjoyed the evening.

A party consisting of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Yeissinger, Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Ross and Thos. H. Wright, residents of DeLand motored over and spent the day on the beach Saturday and were registered at the Hotel Clarendon.

Mrs. Philetuswail and Miss Philetuswail, have arrived in Seabreeze from Newark, N. J., and are pleasantly located at the Hotel Clarendon. They are regular season guests at this popular hotel and have a host of friends who are pleased to have them back.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Sayles, of Brooklyn, N. Y., who have been enjoying a stay of some length on the beach at the Hotel Clarendon have gone to Palm Beach and other Southern points in Florida. They thoroughly enjoyed their stay in Seabreeze and are planning to return next winter.

It will be of interest to many to know that Mrs. C. E. Morehouse, of Troy, N. Y., arrived Friday and will conduct the Oriental shop in the Hotel Clarendon this winter. She is busy in getting things in readiness and expects to be ready to accommodate the public immediately. Mrs. Morehouse conducts the Vanity Fair shop in Troy, N. Y., and handles an exquisite line of goods. Her shop will be one of the main centers of attraction, as her articles are beautiful and her main object is to please the public.

A dinner party that is anticipated with great pleasure is one that is to be given by Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Hankins, of Daytona, Monday evening at the grill of the Hotel Clarendon. Very elaborate plans are being made and twenty-four guests are invited to enjoy the occasion.

RENO, THE MAGICIAN.

For thirty-four years Edward Reno has been a magician. He is constantly inventing new things in magic and illusions. Magic, like everything else, has progressed with rapid strides during the past few years.

Reno has the usual light paraphernalia, but performs his tricks while in ordinary evening dress and so adroitly as to escape detection in every case. In this respect he is a wonder. He does things that seem absolutely impossible of execution without the aid of supernatural agency.

One of his performances that never fail to amaze his audiences is known as the "dove trick." He burns a piece of common paper, and a dove rises phoenix-like from the ashes. He apparently tears the dove in two, only to find that he has two doves in his hands.

RENO, THE MAGICIAN.

He throws a glass of water into the air, and it changes into a dove and dies away.

Not the least enjoyable feature of Reno's performance is the running fire of comment with which he enlivens everything he does. These fragmentary remarks are full of fun and wit, with dash after dash of good tempered satire aimed at himself or his work. He is a man of fine personality and engaging stage presence, with a keen mentality and an artistic appreciation of the success he has achieved in his profession.

In a performance two hours in length he is able to spring one surprise after another on his audience, keeping his audience in a state of breathless wonder and delight until they forget to note the flight of time. The fact that many of these tricks are inventions of his own adds interest to the entertainment.

ALMOST A THOUSAND PEOPLE GO TO BEACH M. E. SUNDAY SCHOOL

DAYTONA BEACH M. E. SUNDAY SCHOOL NEARLY REALIZES ITS AIM TO HAVE THOUSAND IN ATTENDANCE.

Because of such moderate weather, large numbers were in attendance at the Daytona Beach Methodist Sunday School Sunday morning, the date on which it was the pastor's ambition to have a thousand persons in attendance. The church was full of people, both in the auditorium and basement, at 9:45 a.m., when services promptly began. Many arrived during the next few minutes and when a head count was taken, the officers of the church found 926 people present.

This crowd probably constituted the largest Sabbath school in the South yesterday morning, and was by far the largest in the state.

The junior classes spent their time on their lessons until half past ten when all assembled in front of the church along the sides of the street when a panoramic picture was taken by Photographer Lesesne, of Daytona. After this a majority of the people again entered the church for the regular morning service.

The friends of Mrs. H. F. Stewart will be pleased to hear that she has recovered from her illness enough to be able to enjoy an auto ride Sunday morning and afternoon. Mrs. Stewart has been greatly missed from the local social circles.

DAYTONA BEACH BOYS PASS LIFE SAVING EXAMINATION

Stanley Strother and Quinn Branch, of Daytona Beach, passed the volunteer life saving examinations given at the Nautilus Casino Saturday, under the directions of Mr. Slomberber. These boys are very much at home in the water, having lived in Daytona Beach nearly their entire lives and learned to swim in the ocean.

BAPTIST MUSICAL BRINGS OUT LARGE ATTENDANCE

Every seat was taken at the concert given at the Baptist church in Seabreeze Friday evening. The many selections were pleasingly rendered and all present were extremely satisfied with the evening's pleasure.

About 225 persons were present and the ladies who superintended the musical cleared for the church nearly $37.

GRAND CONCERT AND MUSICAL NEXT FRIDAY

The grand concert and musical to be given as the next number of the Daytona Beach Methodist Church Tourist Class Entertainment course, is dated for next Friday night at the church building.

This concert will be one of the best ever held in the building, and all are assured a treat.

DAYTONA BEACH LOCALS

Grant Bly, of DeLand, spent Sunday at the beach visiting with friends, making the trip by auto.

Lee Klingerman, of DeLand, motored over from the county seat Saturday and spent the day enjoying the many sports at the beach.

Mr. and Mrs. Kerstetter have returned from a pleasant trip to the West Coast and the Gasparilla celebration, and are again located at the Ocean Spray on Seabreeze avenue.

H. Duke, of Thousand Islands Park, N. Y., who spent a few weeks here in the early part of the season, has returned from Miami, and is now at the Branch house, on Seabreeze avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. O'Neill and family motored over from DeLand yesterday in their touring car and enjoyed a very pleasant Sunday in Daytona Beach. The party returned late in the evening.

Mrs. James and daughter, Margaret, have recently arrived from their Ohio home to spend the remainder of the season. They have taken the lower apartment in the Branch house on Coates street.

Mr. and Mrs. Adriah Fuquay and party motored up to Ocean City Sunday to spend the day visiting at the home of Luther Upson in that town. Mr. Fuquay and party returned to their Daytona Beach home late in the evening, after a very pleasant day's trip.

Lee Conover arrived Saturday for a short stay with his wife, who has been spending the last few weeks in visiting with her mother, Mrs. Jane Daugherty, at the Breakers hotel. Mr. and Mrs. Conover expect to return to Jacksonville during the first of the week.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank C. Williams, of Cincinnati, O., left today for Rockledge. At that place they will meet a party of friends and board their yacht for a river trip to Miami and Palm Beach. They expect to return to the beach before leaving for the north in the spring.

Greenwich. — The word Greenwich is pronounced Gren-ich. At least that is the pronunciation that has been fixed for it by the custom of the British public.

There Has Been a Change. — The old-fashioned boy whose mother used to tie a piece of fat bacon around his neck when he had a sore throat now has a son who pays a throat specialist 100 bucks and learns that he has laryngitis and must spend the summer in the mountains.

Sleep.

A man who has just enjoyed a good sound sleep is both taller and lighter than he was before. The intervals of sleep required by different individuals vary greatly, according to one writer. A physician calls attention to the fact that babies sleep about twenty hours out of the twenty-four.

The Office Seeker. — A man with a deep and steadfast longing for office will run excitedly around begging everybody he sees to sign his nomination petitions and then, when he finally gets enough signatures, will put on a clean shirt and announce that if the call of duty comes he will not disregard the summons.—Ohio State Journal.

Lamps of Ancient Times.

The most primitive lamps were probably the skulls of animals in which fat was burned, while certain sea-shells were also employed for this purpose. When pottery and metal began to be used the principle of these natural lamps was for a long time retained, as seen in ancient Egyptian, Greek and Roman lamps, and in the stone cups and boxes of northern nations.

SEASIDE INN CONCERT PLEASES GUESTS GREATLY

The regular evening concert was held at the Seaside Inn Sunday. The fine program was carried out in a pleasing manner, and all of the guests in attendance voted it to be one of the best of the season. Miss Hunter, of Atlantic avenue, played several well executed piano selections and accompanied Mrs. Woodward, of Ocean avenue, who sang two beautiful soprano solos.

Man's Advantage.

One advantage a man has is that whenever he wants anything in the house he can always call to his wife and she'll tell him just where it is, but when a woman wants anything she has to hunt for it.—Detroit Free Press.

Teaspoon Not to Be Trusted.

The teaspoon is unreliable as a means of measuring a dose. It varies from sixty to ninety minims.

Confines Himself to Advice.

You may have observed that the average man seldom does the things he is constantly telling others they should do.

Use Salt.

To clean willow furniture, scrub well with coarse brush and water that is strongly saturated with salt. Then dry with a soft cloth. Salt not only cleans willowware, but prevents it from turning yellow. Straw matting may be most successfully cleaned in the same way.

Was Too Clever.

James Payn, the novelist, remarked of one woman who used to say the most brilliant things in conversation that if she had only devoted half the time she spent in thinking of them to considering whether the brilliant things would be in good taste and not arouse ill feeling, she would have been ten times more popular. As it was she was not voted a delightful person by any means.

FINAL SETTLEMENT OF C. G. SMITH CASE

LOCAL SCHOOL RECEIVES 19 DIPLOMAS FROM THE JUDGES OF THE SCHOOL EXHIBITS AT FAIR.

The final decision of the case of the state of Florida versus Clark G. Smith, for assault and battery, was held in DeLand Saturday before Judge Bert Fish.

The defendant, who was accused of assault and battery on the person of S. F. Smith, also of Daytona Beach, pleaded guilty and was fined $200 for this crime as well as the trespassing charge, which was tried several weeks ago. In this charge, Mr. Smith was accused of trespassing on the water mains of the Daytona Beach municipal water works.

C. G. Smith was given ten days in which to raise the money to pay his fine.

JUDGE WILL DECIDE THE S. F. SMITH CASE

The S. F. Smith trial, which was to be held in DeLand Saturday, was left in the hands of the judge, as both parties agreed that a jury trial would be of no avail, as the case was one in which technical points only would bear in the argument.

Judge Fish will give his decision on the case on February 23rd. It will be awaited with interest by all citizens of the Peninsula who are anxious to see Mr. Smith cleared of any guilt.

TOURIST CLASS POSTPONES TOMOKA TRIP FOR A WEEK

On account of the sudden change of weather Sunday night, the tourist class of the Daytona Beach Methodist church called off their Tomoka picnic and set the date forward to next Monday. This trip is one of the numbers of this class' entertainment course and large crowds expected to spend a delightful day taking the boat ride up the inland river. The quick change to colder temperature, however, upset the plans of the majority, although many were on hand this morning for the trip.

THE SINGING TEACHER

By LOUISE OLIVER.

Just for a few minutes Viola felt like running away when she faced her grown-up school. How different from the little girls' and boys' of daylight! To her surprise, quite a number of the men were foreigners who knew very little of the English language. But their wholesome respect for her put metal into her purpose and fighting blood into her veins.

There was one man in the room who puzzled Viola. He went by the name of Joe Brown. One thing she divined instantly—he was a gentleman; in fact, he had the manners of an aristocrat. But the thing that drew her to him from the first was his wonderful voice. For Viola insisted upon having singing. For fifteen minutes every evening the halls of the old building reverberated with the echoes of masculine voices.

And Joe Brown led them all. His voice was clear and deep and full of passionate appeal that gripped the heart of the little teacher.

One evening she called him to her. "Joe, I know you are not an American. Won't you sing a song for us in your own language? You have a wonderful voice."

Joe flushed happily and bowed low. "With the most pleasure, Miss Northcott." He spoke slowly, picking his words with care, but he seldom made a grammatical error and was fast overcoming his foreign accent. "I am German."

Joe Brown sang and it was so wonderful—the mellowness and richness of his voice, the feeling with which he sang, and as Viola's quick ear noted, the wonderful training he showed—that for some time after he had finished no one stirred.

Behind the tears in his pretty teacher's eyes was a look of interest that had never been there before.

The school did famously. Viola worked hard with her class and daily the lessons became less irksome and more interesting. Then there was an innovation to which the pupils looked forward eagerly, for every evening Joe sang for them.

One night after the class was dismissed, Viola opened the street door to go home. Suddenly a gust of wind dashed fine sleet into her face and the wind tried to lift her off her feet. Then a man stepped out of the shadow.

"May I go home with you, Miss Northcott? It is a bad night."

Viola laid a hand gratefully upon his proffered arm. "Yes, indeed, Joe. It was good of you to wait."

After that there was little chance for them to talk. The storm increased in violence, and, even with her escort's help, it was all she could do to keep her feet. When at last they reached her door she insisted upon him going in. You must come in and wait, Joe. No one can live in that blizzard. I'm going to call mother to hear you sing. You don't mind, do you? I will play your accompaniment."

So Joe stayed and sang so wonderfully that both Viola and her mother were thrilled.

Then Viola told him of her own ambition—how she had stopped her musical education for lack of money to go further, and her determination to work day and night until she had enough money to have lessons of the wonderful Max von Deerhof.

"Max von Deerhof!" he cried. "Yes! Do you know him?"

"Very, very well, Miss Northcott. I was thinking how happy he would be to have you for a pupil."

"I wonder," he went on, turning to her mother, "if I may give Miss Northcott some lessons on Saturday if she can spare me a little time. I teach music myself."

So Viola's Saturday lessons began, and she soon discovered that her teacher was a marvel. Under his guidance her voice expanded and became exquisitely beautiful. The cold weeks flew and April came. The days of night school were numbered.

The last night it was raining, a drenching April shower. When Viola appeared in the doorway Joe was waiting to take her home.

"Miss Northcott," he began almost immediately when he had suited his step to hers, "you aren't my teacher any longer, but with your consent I'll remain yours. It's time, too, that I was telling you my right name. I am Max von Deerhof, or do you know it already?"

Viola was silent, too amazed for speech.

He went on. "I know what you are thinking, wondering rather. Well, I will tell you. I could not learn English well. I had teachers by the dozen. No good! Then someone said: 'Do like the others. Go to a good night school. They will make you learn!' So I made my name into Joe Brown, and Joe Brown is so grateful to his teacher he is going to keep on giving her lessons forever if he may."

"I hardly know what to say, Mr. Von Deerhof," faltered Viola. "You have done something for me I can never repay."

"Maybe some day you'll find that you can," he said softly. "I love you, Viola. I have always loved you. And perhaps you may find some time that you could care a little for me!"

And there was a slight pressure from the fingers that rested so lightly upon his arm.

PEACE IN THE FAMILY

By KEITH KENYON.

Henry Harper put back his well-shaped head and laughed. "Well, I like that! Do you know I'm only forty-three?" But I suppose that must seem ancient to twenty."

Dora loved her father devotedly. There was something in his tone that brought a flood of red to her cheeks. "Well, not exactly ancient, daddy, but when I get married I want some one my own age who can play golf and tennis and dance and run an aeroplane, maybe, if he's rich."

"An all-around athlete like yourself! So you think because I like books and a garden and write for magazines I'm old and decrepit?"

"Now, daddy!" "It sounds pretty much that way, miss. But if you liked books and flowers better than anything else wouldn't you like your husband to like them, too, no matter what his age might be?" anxiously.

"I suppose so," with a sigh. "But, daddy dear, if she's accepted you—and you seem pretty sure of it or you'd have been more anxious about the letter—please don't tell me. I know that silence means consent. And maybe some day—I mean I'll try to get used to it." She kissed him and went quickly back to the house to sob her heart out in her room.

The days passed and Henry Harper never returned to the subject they had discussed that morning in the garden. Dora drooped, knowing that her father was to be married and that another woman would soon be pouring coffee at her place at the table.

Her friends, little guessing the trouble, did what they could to cheer her. Her father was worried. "Dora," he said one morning with finality, "I have a plan. I'm going to send you away. You need a change of scene and air. If you go on this way I don't know what will happen. You've got to go. I've made up my mind!"

"But, daddy, promise you won't—" she stopped.

He guessed the appeal in her eyes. "No, dear," softly. "I won't be married while you're gone. I know of a place on the north shore of Massachusetts, Brockton, where a number of people have cottages. Some friends of your mother live there—two in fact, a Mr. Cyrus Fielding, bachelor, and his sister Margaret. They have always wanted us to visit them, but I can't go just now. So I'm going to send you alone. There! That's a good girl. I knew you'd do it. I'll give you a check for some clothes and try to be ready by Saturday."

The Fieldings were at the station with their car when Dora arrived at Brockton Saturday evening. Margaret was clear skinned, dark eyed and quiet mannered, and her tender greeting of the girl won her at once. Cyrus, tall and not too good looking, put Dora instantly at her ease by remarking, "How do you do, Miss Harper?" The last time I saw you you were cutting your first teeth. Someone suggested that you investigate, and you bit me. I still have the scar."

Dora laughed. "I have always wondered why my teeth tried to grow crooked. I understand now. They got wrecked in infancy."

"Very likely you are right," agreed Margaret Fielding, looking at her brother fondly. "He's as hard as nails all over. And no wonder—he's never in the house."

"That sounds promising," returned Dora. "If you mean he's fond of sport."

"Try me on anything you like!" boasted Cyrus. "But here we are at home."

The cottage was low, rambling and luxurious with every comfort. Surrounding it was a most wonderful garden. "Oh, if father could only see it!" exclaimed Dora. "He loves flowers so!"

"I wish he could!" answered Margaret. "The garden is mine. I take care of it myself. Now, dearie, I want you to feel that this is your home. Do just whatever you wish. I'll see that you meet some charming people and Cyrus would love to have you along on all his jaunts, boating or otherwise, if you don't think he's too old."

"You're both darlings," exclaimed Dora enthusiastically. "It's my own fault if I don't have the time of my life." For the time she had forgotten about her father and her trouble.

The days and weeks flew. The roses of health and spirits again bloomed on Dora's cheeks—and something else! For she had fallen in love with Cyrus Fielding and he with her. "But, dear, you are sure you don't think I am too old," he asked her once anxiously. "I'm forty."

"Oh, hush! I won't have you say that," she laughed. "You're just right."

One day Dora came into the library where Margaret was reading. On the table was a bowl of roses that caught her eye. "Why, those are Lady Thorn roses! I thought father was the only one in this part of the country who had them!"

"He is!" answered Margaret, putting her arms tenderly around Dora and drawing her close. "He sent them to me. Do you like me any better, dear, than you did?"

"You darling!" exclaimed Dora. "So you are to be my new mother? Oh, I'm so glad! Now I've two things to tell daddy in my letter."

WELL IMPRESSED WITH DAYTONA AND CLIMATE

Mr. and Mrs. Walter M. Pratt of Earlville, Ill., who had been in the city for about a week, departed today on their return north. Mr. and Mrs. Pratt are friends and neighbors in Earlville of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Dupee, regular Daytona winter visitors, who are located for the season, as usual, in one of Mrs. A. E. Barker's houses on Magnolia avenue, and Mr. Dupee said to it that Mr. and Mrs. Pratt did not miss any places of interest about the city. Mr. and Mrs. Pratt were making their first visit to Daytona, but say they will surely come again, as they were very favorably impressed with the city and with the Florida climate which Mr. Pratt says is greatly superior to that of California in his estimation.

Mr. Pratt is largely interested in the manufacture of tile, conducting three separate plants.

"PORKY FLYNN" HERE TO MEET TOM KELLER

SIEMS' HOUSE-BOAT, PEGGY, ARRIVES HERE

"Porky Flynn," the heavyweight boxer of national fame, will arrive in Daytona today. He is scheduled to meet Keller, the champion of England, Australia and Germany, according to the managers, at 8:45 o'clock Wednesday evening, February 16th, in a 15-round bout, at the Arcade.

Flynn boxed Fulton, who later challenged Jess Willard, in one of the fastest matches in history. He has science backed up with a lot of "pep" and "getoutandlickem." There is going to be a single bit of shirking Wednesday night, and the promoters assure the public they will receive value for their money.

The name "Keller" talks for itself! It is understood that he is the light-heavyweight champion of England, Australia and Germany, although he now is classed as a heavyweight in America.

The managers wish to state most emphatically there will be duplication of last week's misunderstanding and all are welcome to ask the return of their money, if they feel dissatisfied with the evening's entertainment.

THE QUALITY SHOP SPRING OPENING SALE

The spring opening sale at the Quality Shop, "the store for the woman who cares," will commence tomorrow and continue for seven days. This promises to be one of the most important fashion events of the new season.

Nat Goldman of the Quality Shop, has but recently returned from New York, the style-center of the country, where he purchased the stock now to be offered for sale. All his buying was done at the last minute in order to guarantee securing the newest and best and all the new spring garments will be exhibited at the sale which begins tomorrow.

In regard to his recent trip, Mr. Goldman says:

"My recent trip to New York showed me the inadvisability of early buying by a merchant. I waited until the very last minute and procured the most recent and authoritative fashions only. The garments shown to me by salesmen several weeks ago are not the styles that will be worn by the most discriminating women. Thus I have provided for you an assemblage of garments that cannot be equalled in style and correctness."

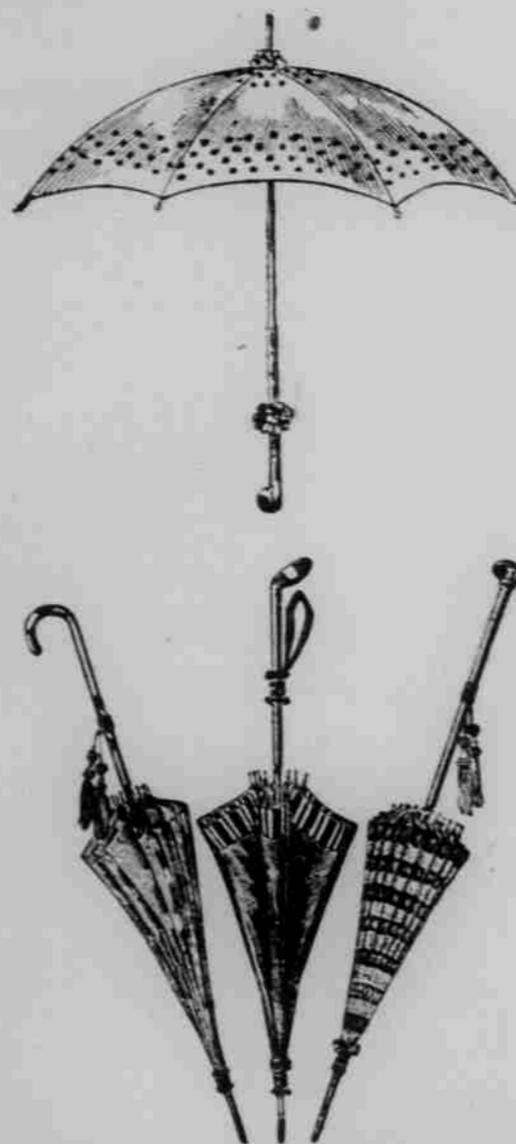

"Values this season are exceptionally good despite peculiar market conditions. I was able through my acquaintance with the makers that give best values to select a stock of garments upon which I have marked extra reasonable prices. I do not believe that you will find these values equalled."

REMAINS FORWARDED TO HARTFORD FOR INTERMENT

GRAND MATRON O. E. S.
GOES TO JACKSONVILLE

Mrs. Lulu M. Scott, grand matron of the Order of the Eastern Star, of Florida, who is making a tour of official visits to the various local chapters of the order in the state and has for several days been the guest of Grand Secretary, Arthur H. Carter, and wife at Holly Hill, departed this morning for Jacksonville where she will visit Jacksonville Chapter No. 15 tomorrow evening, a school of instruction being held in the morning and afternoon. Mrs. Scott also was the guest of Mrs. Geo. F. Smith, a grand chapter official, in this city, and her visit here was a very pleasant one.
Her home is in Fort Mead.

knows how to use it.

"CLASS" IN BREWSTER

By JANE OSBORN.

"Some class!" ejaculated Timothy Green, and his keen, young eyes followed the figure of one of the fair maids of Brewster, self-consciously sliding her way along the main street clad in the Brewster adaptation of fashion's latest mandate.

Polly's eyes were just as keen as Timothy's and from her place of observation at his side on the broad, low veranda of Brewster's leading hostelry
she flashed a glance down the street that didn't overlook any important detail in the costume of the girl Timothy was ogling.

"When you get good and ready, Tim," she said, with an attempt at a laugh, "seems to me I'd like to get some dinner."

"Say, excuse me, Polly, dear," said Timothy, rising and looking down affectionately at Polly's trim, pretty features. She visibly bristled, as she rose to go in.

"I'm not jealous, Timothy—I wouldn't for a minute want you to think that." And she primly straightened her narrow-brimmed, flower-trimmed hat at the mirror as she passed through the hall.

Polly Peckham and Timothy Green had been engaged to be married for six months, and now, within a week of their wedding day, they had made the trip from Stony Corners to do some long anticipated shopping. Timothy's savings had all gone to clear the mortgage on the small farm he inherited from his father, but Polly's carefully accumulated egg-and-chicken money was all to be spent for farm improvements. They were to spend the night at Timothy's uncle's house, make a second round of the stores and return to Stony Corners the next day.

After their noon dinner at the hotel, Polly and Timothy hastened to the hardware store.

"Sure you got that money all right?"
said Timothy. "Hadn't I better take it?"

Polly ignored this query. As one of the Brewster girls tripped her way along she nudged Tim and mocked, "Class, real class, Tim."

They walked on in silence for five minutes. "Say, Tim," Polly broke the silence. "I've been thinking that you would like me better if I looked like one of these Brewster girls."

"Aw, shucks," was Tim's rejoinder.
"I like you just the way you are or I wouldn't be so crazy to marry
you. Say, Polly, did you get that?"
And Timothy whistled lightly to register his approval of the short-skirted, pink-clad blonde who was passing on the opposite side of the street.

At eight the next morning, Timothy and his uncle left the breakfast table and strolled to the veranda.

"I might as well wait here with you,"
said the uncle. "You won't want to start out till the women folks get the things 'done up' inside."

But Polly had a hasty whispered conversation with Timothy's aunt. It met with the elder woman's approval and by the time Timothy and his uncle were comfortably settled in their veranda chairs she was hurrying down the back alley.

"Yes, uncle," Timothy was saying.
"She's a real old-fashioned girl, she is. There isn't many girls who would have done what she did—saved all her egg money to spend on the separator and incubator and things. She's a kind of plain dresser, but a fellow can't get everything in one package.
And I sure am awful fond of her."

By this time Polly had reached Brewster's leading department store.

In a quarter of an hour, with a lighter purse, she went to the shoe store.
Next she visited the corsetiere, and finally the hairdresser.

At noon, Timothy was still sitting on the front porch. Once or twice during the morning his aunt had come to tell him that Polly would be ready soon, but he was becoming uneasy.
Then his uncle returned from his work and they sat waiting for dinner to be announced.

"No, she sure is as economical a wife as anyone would want to find,"
he was repeating, and then as a figure the embodiment of all that made the Brewster belles worth looking at came tripping around the house by the driveway, Timothy whistled.

"Say, uncle, did you get that class?
Some swell dame. If it weren't for Polly I'd sure want to make her acquaintance." Then as he looked at the figure as it approached the veranda he whistled again.

"Polly, Polly," he gasped, and Polly slid gracefully into the chair next to him. Then she rose and stood showing off her finery, her arms outstretched so that no detail of her transformation could be missed.

"Is it class?" she asked, assuming a tone of mock anxiety, and then Timothy, usually lethargic and undemonstrative, seized her dainty figure in his arms and drew the ruffles and gewgaws close to him.

"I was beginning to be afraid you wouldn't be back in time to do the shopping," he said.

Polly hung her head and the color rose to her cheeks. "I guess there won't be enough to buy the incubator and the separator," she said, as she handed him the open half-empty purse.

"Aw, shucks," said Timothy. "Let's spend the rest on another outfit for you. You sure are some class."

MADE BIG CATCH
OF FINE SEA BASS

Speaking about fish! One of the prettiest catches of sea bass that has been made this season was brought into the city this morning by Charles Wilson, of Cooperstown, N. Y., who is located for the season at 74 Fairview and J. P. Wilcox, of 74 Fairview avenue. The fish, 35 in number, ranged in weight from a half pound to five pounds each, the total catch tipping the scales at 60 pounds, and were landed in not over two hours' time by Messrs. Wilson and Wilcox. The bass were just the right size for table use and presented a very interesting sight, ranged side by side, on the lawn at Mr. Wilson's home, where a representative of the News had been invited to inspect them. Several of Mr. Wilson's neighbors had an opportunity later to sample the edible qualities of the fish as did also the News man. A photograph has been taken of the fish, and Mr. Wilson is hoping that it will prove a good one,
as he is anxious to have the picture to show to his friends at Cooperstown on his return north. He says he has been doing some fishing here before, both last winter and the present season, but this catch beats anything he has ever made. The fishing was done at Spruce Creek, the trip being made by automobile. Mr. Wilson had previously located the feeding grounds of the bass and had made a good catch, and asked Mr. Wilson to join him in another trip to the creek to try for some more sport in the same place, and they were certainly well rewarded.

Mexico's Resources.

With its remarkable variation of el-emtic zones and great wealth and variety of vegetation, it might have been supposed that agriculture, not mining, would have been the great mainstay of Mexico. But the fame of silver has overshadowed that of wine and corn and oil.

M'Coy BROS. DOCK NOW A BUSY PLACE

M'Coy Bros. Dock in front of the Prince George Hotel is three days out of the week quite the busiest place in town.

The steamers and the dock are thronged with the crowds who are going to Palm Beach or St. Augustine, and with friends who have come to wish them bon voyage.

Plying between St. Augustine and Palm Beach, these boats, with their large, comfortable cabins, neat dining rooms, awning-covered decks with rockers and steamer-chairs, afford a most ideal way to view the East Coast of Florida. At times the stream is so narrow, en route Palm Beach, it seems as though the boat cannot pass through; then it widens out into a broad river, with shores quite far in the distance. Cocoanut palms, date palms, mangoes and palm-trees overhang the banks, and alligators and crocodiles, with many bright-plumaged birds, charm the way.

The steamer Constitution which arrives today will bring up about 70 passengers from Palm Beach; and the Republic, between St. Augustine and Daytona is carrying large loads also.

SCHOOL NOTES.

Dr. Bennett has given the Daytona school a fine microscope of the Bau-sche and Lomb manufacture, which will be very useful for school research work, and is truly a splendid gift, and is much appreciated by the school and faculty, as well.

A splendid collection of books have been purchased for use in the grades ranging from the first through to the sixth, with money which was secured from a little playlet given some time ago by the lower grades called "Tom Thumb's Wife," and from money donated by Mayor Titus from a performance at one of his theatres. The money was first intended for the securing of stereoptican views for the school, but was later changed to the purpose above mentioned. Miss Edyth Bainter of the school faculty, has charge of the purchase of these books.

which have been bought at a local store, and include Winston's Encyclopedia of eight volumes, a set of nature books, Phyllis Field's series, Ryley's Child Rhymes of two volumes, Farm Rhymes and Stevenson's Child Garden.

At the school board meeting Thursday afternoon it was suggested by Professor Marks that a comprehensive catalogue be published by the school containing a general course of study with views of the school building, together with the two new buildings which are soon to be constructed, views of the interior of the class rooms, laboratories, domestic science room, manual training room and auditorium. In other words, a general scope of the work which is being done by the school from the work of the kindergarten classes to the high school department, fundamentally, the course of study of the school as laid down by the county board of public instruction. The books will contain the methods of promotion of pupils. Also a few views of Daytona. The chief use of the book will be to furnish information to the many inquiries which are received by the professor regarding the schools of Daytona from people who contemplate coming to this city, if the teaching facilities are good. This is an excellent idea, and ought to meet with the approval of all interested in the betterment of fair Daytona. The faculty, each and all, will take an active working interest in the compiling of this book.

Gentle Eyed Seal.

Seals are still numerous and are disliked by Labrador fishermen. Dr. Grenfell says that he has known a seal to haunt a net so persistently that to get any fish the owner had to watch all the while at one end of it, and even then the seal would almost snap off the fisherman's hand as he raced to be first to disentangle the salmon.

Foodstuffs and Their Worth. Beefsteak and some vegetables are rich in iron. In meat the iron exists largely as hemoglobin, due to the blood contained in the muscular tissues. Iron in combination with protein matter is found in considerable quantity in grains. String beans, navy beans, lima beans, spinach especially, cabbage and dried peas are rich in iron. Among the fruits that have plenty of iron are dried prunes, apples and raisins.

PRESIDENT'S NAME TO BE ON OHIO PRIMARY

(By International News Service.)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14.—President Wilson today authorized the use of his name as a candidate in the Ohio primary elections. He explained in a letter to Secretary of State Hilderbrand, of Columbus, that he was unwilling to compete with any man for nomination, and permitted his name on the ballot simply to comply with the laws of the state, in the advent of any electors wishing to run as a Wilson supporter.

NEW YORK AND BOSTON SWEPT BY ICY WAVE

(By International News Service.)

ATLANTA, Feb. 14.—It is reported the eastern section of the United States is in the grip of a devastating cold wave. The cities of Boston, New York and Chicago are experiencing zero weather, with many deaths from freezing as a result.

The mercury here stands at 22 above and dispatches from points further south tell of unusual low temperature throughout the region, clear to the Florida line.

The northern portion of the country is experiencing low temperature. At Malone, N. Y., the mercury has dropped to 22 degrees below zero. A heavy blanket of snow has settled over the New England states and is playing havoc with railroad schedules and telegraph traffic. Baltimore, Md., reports today as the coldest February 14th in the history of the city. The thermometer registers three below zero.

KEY WEST LEPER GIRL DIES UNDER KNIFE IN BROOKLYN

(By International News Service.)

NEW YORK, Feb. 14.—The first fatality on record in several years from leprosy occurred in Brooklyn when Tillie Davis, aged 15, died under the knife while physicians were removing a leprous growth from her throat.

She came here from Key West, Fla., two years ago to receive treatment of the strange malady which was later diagnosed as leprosy.

For a few days only I am offering an attractive little lot, on South Palmetto Street, in a fine neighborhood.

It faces east, has a gradual rise to the west and is just large enough for a cozy little bungalow.

The price is right, and within the reach of most everyone.
